My journey with web development started in 2014. Since first lines of code I realize I have found something I want to do professionally. I have been learning new technologies, languages and good practices to develop myself as a better web developer.

I am an ambitious person who likes to solve problems during my projects and also very motivated - since 2014 I am trying to spend my off-work time for improve my front-end skills (that means HTML5, CSS3, JavaScript) in particular, because that has become my passion.

I am a team player with good communication skills - I currently work as a Team Leader and I know how important good communication in group is
